Vol. XI. Numb. 34.

THE OBSERVATOR.

The Countryman relates the Subject-matter of an Argument between himself and an High-Church Man, whereby the Political Question propounded in The Conduct of the Allies, &c. is prov'd to be Treason in it self, as well as by the Explanation of it in the Remarks on the Barrier-Treaty, &c. That the Power imply'd in several Statutes since the Revolution to be in the Legislature to limit and bind the Crown, &c. is perverted by that Author to be a Power to alter or change the Succession. Some incident Observations on other Paragraphs in the Remarks, &c.

From Wednesday, April 23. to Saturday, April 26. 1712.

Countrym WHere hast thou been, Roger? Thou look'st as ruddy as a Disputant upon Duty.

Countrym. Ruddy enough in Conscience, I believe, and reason enough to be so, if you knew all, Master.

Obs. Prithee let me know, then, if it be no Secret; I almost suspect thou has been foil'd at an Argument.

Countrym. That I deny with both my Hands, and faithfully promise you, that while I can manage this Towel, however I may fail in the Art of Wrangling, by the Help of my Argumentum Battalinum, I think you call it, I'll never, but with my Life, be beaten out of the Defence of my Queen, and the Constitution of my Country.

Obs. To the Point then, if you would have me believe you; you seem hot enough to have little Success either way, for ought I know. Remember our late Glorious Master's Character of the Hero that succeeded him in Retrieving the Honour of his Country, and breaking the Power of France .... A Cool Head and a Warm Heart, Roger.

Countrym. Ay, and such a one as will yet, I hope, make warmer Work on't, in due time; and, in Defence of our Queen and Constitution, make more places than one, too hot to hold our degenerate Pack, the Friends of France.

Obs. Again! ... I must leave you, I find.

Countrym. A little Patience, Master. I can't, I own, bear the Insults of the Enemys of our Country, under the colour of Argument, or rather hypocritical Cant, without more than common Emotion; But forgive me, since it brings me naturally to the Solution of your Question. You must know then, having sold my Hay this Morning, and taken Money for't, a little Business led me in the Afternoon into St. Paul's Church-yard; where hearing that the Chap I wanted was at that Church, I thought I could not employ the Time in which he was expected home, better than in saying my Prayers with him there: Hereupon walking in at the West-End, where should I meet him, but saunt'ring a Furlong almost from the Fold, or Choir I think you call it, in one of the Walks, where those Genuine Sons of the Church, the loose ones, meet to Whet on Sunday Mornings. I reprov'd him, as I thought I ought, and at last reduc'd him to his Duty, and plainly found, he stray'd abroad, not for want of Room, there being more than enough for two or three of our Country Parishes to stand or kneel in the Heart on't, without jostling; And in truth I was asham'd to find so very much for so very little good Company: But more so, that so many Seats, or Stalls as you call 'em, appropriated for certain benefic'd Members of the Church, were emptier than, I thank God, Mine at Home are. After Service was over, we adjourn'd to a Coffee-House hard-by, where that Want was more than enough supply'd, at a large Table fill'd on all sides with about a Dozen, the most of them Cl--gy--n, that by the Gage of their Pipes had been at it at least all the Prayer-time. I sate me down at a lower Form; and having soon dispatch'd what I came about, had Leisure enough to observe the Text they were upon; and what should it be, Master, but the Subject-matter of your last Discourse with me, relating to the treasonable Question propounded by the Author of The Conduct of the Allies, &c. and further explain'd in his Remarks on the Barrier-Treaty? &c. Whereupon one of the Company, a sort of an L. L. D. as I understood, a Legal Doctor I think it stands for, with a Black Rose in his Hat and a Red one in his Cheek, very roundly affirm'd, 'That the 'Question or Supposition in The Conduct &c. 'was innocent; and being so in itself, could not 'be made otherwise by the subsequent Position 'or Illustration; For the former, said he, sup-'poses no more, than that a Necessity might 'happen, some time or other, for the Legisla-'ture to alter the Succession; and the latter vests 'the Power of such a Change in the whole Le-'gislature.'

Obs. Well, and how were you, Roger, concern'd in their Talk? I thought I had given you sufficient Satisfaction in the matter when we last discours'd on't, to neglect those that wilfully deceive themselves and their Pupils.

Countrym. Concern'd, say you! how could I be otherwise? My righteous Spirit was mov'd immediately; up I got, laid down my Pipe, own'd myself your Countryman, and that my Principles and Practices were of a piece; and told him as roundly, That as a true Briton I defy'd him, and all his Rout of Positions, Suppositions, and Illustrations; That the Queen's most Gratious Majesty's Right, and that of the Illustrious House of Hanover, the lawful Issue of the late Glorious Revolution, were not to be craftily call'd in Question by the whole Lutestring Company, of which I humbly conceiv'd him a Member; and would venture the whole of my Expectations from the next good Harvest, which I hop'd to enjoy in spight of Pope, Perkins or any other Pretender, on the other side the Question, if he thought fit to stake down a single Union-Shilling against it.

Obſ. Fairly offer'd, Roger; bnt what ſollow'd?

Countrym. Doctor, ſaid I, in order to it, give me leave to ſtate the Queſtion between us. You ſay, that the Author of The Conduct, &c. making it a Queſtion, whether it were right in point of Policy or Prudence, to call in a Foreign Power to be Guarantee to our Succeſſion, becauſe by that means we put it out of the Power of our own Legiſlature to alter the Succeſſion, how much ſoever the Neceſſity of the Kingdom required it, is Innocent, it being no more than a Suppoſition, that ſuch a Neceſſity may ſometime or other happen; and being ſo Innocent in itſelf, you ſay further, that it cannot be made otherwiſe by the ſubſequent Poſition or Illuſtration, in his Remarks, &c. wherein he proceeds to explain himſelf, That ſuch a Power, A Power to alter or change the Succeſſion, for they are both his own Words, whenever the Neceſſity of the Kingdom required it, is veſted in the whole Legiſlature: This, I think, is the point between us; and which, without the Cant of Argumentizing, I'll undertake to prove on the Terms aforeſaid, to be Treaſon in your Author in the Queſtion or Suppoſition, as well as by the ſubſequent Poſition or Illuſtration, as you call it.

Obſ. You ſet up I find for a Man of Skill, as well as Courage, Roger; But were your Terms clos'd withall?

Countrym. Clos'd withall ſay you! No ſuch Matter: Will Puſs cloſe with my Steady at the ſcent of her? However, continued I, ſince you will not venture to ſtake with me, I'll go on and endeavour to prove my Point for the good of the Company: Tho' by the way let me tell you too, on my Maſters behalf, he would have done it himſelf, had he thought it worth his while; for if laying down a Treaſonable Poſition, tho' by the artful way of propounding a Queſtion, be Treaſon in itſelf, and which too the Author, by the Caution of his Prompters, was aware of, and therefore by a wiſe Explanation of his Meaning, made it worſe; My Maſter was certainly in the right on't not to perplex the Matter, by taking the Queſtion and Explanation ſeverally to pieces; but to ſhow by your Author's own Confeſſion in explaining how he meant it, that he meant no leſs than Treaſon by propounding it; and thought that one ſtring, (as it is) ſtrong enough to hold him.

Obſ. I am obliged to you, Roger, and think I muſt change Hands with you. But to the Proof of your Aſſertion.

Countrym. I proceed, Maſter. Doctor, ſaid I, I make no doubt but you are a Doctor at every thing; Many, that I know, of your Profeſſion in taking one Degree, take All: Let me therefore only appeal to your Learning in the Laws of our Land, By what known Law or Statute, even ſince the Revolution, (for I would not puzzle you too far) is it any where ſo much as implyed, that the whole Legiſlature has reſerv'd a Power in any Caſe, to Alter or Change the Succeſſion, as it ſettled by the Bill of Rights, and the other Acts that followed upon it; produce me one, Doctor, ſince the Revolution, that Whiggiſh Change your Author is pleas'd to Cenſure, that Change of Abſolute Neceſſity, to which we owe our preſent happy Eſtabliſhment, and an Eſtabliſhed Succeſſion of Bleſſings; and in which, as my Maſter has already ſhewn, the whole Legiſlature neither did nor could Concur at the Time when it took Effect; that being one of the Virtually Excepted Caſes, mentioned in the Tryal of your Viſible Ch——ch, S—ch—ll, which is Paramount to all Laws, as Acts of a Legiſlature. The Revolution is within Memory, all Laws touching the Crown from thence, are Recent; and that part of the Book has been tumbled over and over more Purpoſes than one, and perhaps to elude 'em: ſhow me one inſtance Time. HE Hungarian Crown which hath been kept here ever ſince the late Wars, was on the 14th ſent to Presbourg under the Convoy of 30 of the Emperour's Life-Guard and 4 Companies of the of Rabutin, commanded by Count Count Colonitz. The Emperour's de- Presbourg ſeems fixed for the 8th of the Chancery have Orders to ſet out in In the mean time the States of Hungary eſtly that they be allowed to repreſent vances, and that the Emperour give them l Bull according to the antient Laws of lom before he be Crowned. Their Re- on will conſiſt of 300 Sheets, and the nſwer will take up 1200; which being to be performed within the propoſed Coronation, 'tis ſuppoſed will be a reaſon oning them. 'Tis urged that it ought to efore the Coronation, and was ſo in the Joſeph's Caſe; but to this 'tis anſwered, ough it might be ſo with an elected King was, it does not follow that a ſucceeding he preſent Emperour, is obliged to obſerve Form. The Hungarian Diet, wherein of Trautſon will Preſide as the Empe- Commiſſioner, will meet aſſoon as the Qua- 14 Days which the Nobility are obliged be expired, that is by the End of this The Citizens of Presbourg are making ons to receive the Crown, which they call , with very great Solemnity. In the frequent Conferences are held among y concerning the Confirmation of their before the Coronation; but 'tis anſwer'd perour's Part, that his Majeſty will ob- apitulation of the deceaſed Emperour maintain all the Rights and Privileges on and Nobility; and promiſes to ex- reafter in ſuch ample manner as ſhall proper. It is believed that the Prince emberg will have the Honour to con- preſs from Catalonia hither. General was formerly in the Czar's Service but here unemployed, will be ſent 'tis ſaid ſecret Commiſſion from the King of Ottoman Court. According to the Walachia and the Berg Towns, the the Swediſh Troops were on their ade Poland, but that they have ſince ers to halt till further Orders: And me 'tis ſaid the Sultan has ſent Twen- Money to Bender. The Count de returned to this Court in Quality the King of Poland, and aſſures us Nobility are in good Diſpoſition to for the good of the King and Re- hat the Diet will in a ſhort time be appy Concluſion.

Leiden Gazette, dated April 26.

il 16. The General Diet of the tick Body which was held at Baden our Deputies returned hither the g made Report to our Regency of that Aſſembly, repreſented to them olick Cantons would not liſten to ockenburg. An Expreſs from the County being lately arrived here our Regency a ſpeedy and powerful on that Captain Nabholtz was come ers Officers to make a ſevere Exe- Part of the Abbot of St. Gal on the ceo Foot and 4 Companies of Horſe were ſent thither on the 12th, and with them 8 Pieces of Cannon and good ſtore of Ammunition and Proviſions. The Canton of Bern has in like manner ſent 4000 Foot and 5 Companies of Dragoons, with Cannon and Ammunition; and the Generals appointed for that Service, having with them the military Cheſt, followed on the 13th. The Council of Tockenburg have alſo raiſed the Militia, and taken Poſſeſſion of the Convents of Magenau, St. John, and St. Mary, together with divers other Poſts and Villages. Aſſoon as our Forces and thoſe of Bern arrived on the Frontiers they ſent a Deputation to the Abbot of St. Gal, by the Succeſs of which we expect to know whether there will be Peace or War.

From the Amſterdam Gazette, dated April 26.

Zurich, April 16. The Tockenburgers commanded by Captain Nabholtz have ſeized by Stratagem the Cloiſters of Magenau, Wa tweil, New St. John, and Old St. John, which are well fortified: And the Inhabitants of the Lower Tockenburg who are in the Intereſt of the Abbot took Arms at the ſame time and joyned him. The 14th he advanced towards Biſchweiller, after having driven away the Enemy and taken the Bridge: He found the Church-yard guarded by 200 Men commanded by Captain Bollenger, and upon his refuſal to ſurrender brought up three Pieces of Cannon and attacked them with Vigour till he gained the Church-yard Sword in Hand, taking Captain Bollenger and a good part of his Men Priſoners. Towards the Evening our Forces being advanced, they found Collonel Felwar in the Plain with 600 of the Abbot's Party, who retired on our Approach and joyned another Body of 1200. Upon which Major Herzel went out of the Camp at Elg with 1000 Zurichers and advanced towards that Body of the Abbot's Troops, to whoſe Aſſiſtance Captain Nabholtz advanced, and ours were alſo reinforced, ſo that we expect a Battle. 4000 Men are marched hence to Day to reinforce our Troops upon Advice that the Catholick Cantons intend to aſſiſt the Abbot, and 4000 more are expected from Berne.

From the Leid. Gaz. and Hag. Cour. dated April 29.

Zurich, April 20. The Roman Catholick Canton of Lucern have poſſeſſed themſelves of divers Poſts upon the Frontiers of the Canton of Zurich, but ſome Militia are placed to obſerve them. 16000 of the Zurichers are already in Tockenburg, and the Troops of Bern are in full March thither with 12 Pieces of Cannon and a good ſtore of Ammunition. The Cantons of Zurich and Berne have publiſhed a Manifeſto of their Reaſons for aſſiſting the Inhabitants againſt the Oppreſſions of the Abbot of St. Gal; The Subſtance whereof is as follows. 'The Inhabitants of Tockenburg having 'for a long time ſuffered ſo great Oppreſſions from 'the Officers of the Abbot of St. Gal as tended to 'the overthrow of all their Liberties, the Burgo- 'maſters and Senators of the laudable Cantons of 'Zurich and Berne made Remonſtrances thereupon 'to the Cantons of Switz and Glaris; but the Ab- 'bot of St. Gal far from reguarding the Advice of 'thoſe Cantons, deprived the Inhabitants of Tock- 'enburg of the Right which they have enjoyed 'ever ſince the Year 1440, of ſending Deputies to 'the general Diets of the laudable Helvetick Body; 'and continued his Vexations towards them with- 'out affording them the leaſt Satisfaction for the 'many Grievances they had ſuffered. They did 'therefore in the Year 1706 apply themſelves to 'the Cantons of Zurich and Berne, who found 'themſelves obliged to Treat upon the Means of 'gaining them Redreſs. But theſe Cantons under- 'ſtood with much Concern, that after the general 'Diet held that Year at Baden, the Roman Catho- 'lick Cantons held a Conference in the Convent
